

PAUL BROS.

AUTOBODY

collision excellence since 1905

Welcome

Paul Bros. Autobody was established in 1905 in the University City area. The company originally repaired all types of collision damage, including city horse drawn carriages and carts. As the automobile gained popularity, the Paul Bros. organization expanded and moved to a facility located on Baltimore Avenue.

During the 1950's, the automobile became the cornerstone of the economy. With new roads and suburban expansion, automobile collisions increased. Paul Bros. again had to move to the current location at 49th and Chestnut Streets.

In the late 1960's, the Paul family entertained discussions with a newly introduced vehicle manufacturer, Toyota Motor Cars. An agreement was made and Paul Bros. became the first Toyota agency located in Philadelphia.

The gas crisis of the 1970's presented another opportunity for growth. As Americans became more conscious of gas consumption, they turned to foreign imports to meet the demand. Toyota sales skyrocket in the 1980's and the brand became synonymous with high quality and value. As the first Toyota certified repair facility on the East Coast, Paul Bros. was again poised for expansion.

Paul Bros. has been progressive in keeping with changes in the automobile industry. A leader in collision repair and a staunch supporter of education in the industry, Paul Bros. remains the prototype of a successful collision repair facility.
