Paul Bros. Autobody

Paul Bros. Autobody, located in West Philadelphia and established in 1905, was the First Certified Collision Repair Center in the Central Atlantic Region. Max Paul, owner and operator of Paul Bros., is a 3rd generation owner.

Max Paul, winner of the last 5 president awards says...

“Training is critical, and as an I-CAR training facility and one of the first certified ASE shops, we have found the Toyota Certification program to be a valuable marketing tool. The Toyota Certified program has given us a huge advantage in marketing our product, selling our jobs and a major selling point in advertising.”

According to Jack Kubicky...

“With tremendous technical support, on time parts delivery, and superior quality, Toyota has become the benchmark by which all manufacturers should follow. Collision repair would be a lot easier if other manufacturers followed the Toyota example.”

If you think your shop could benefit from this, get certified now!

The standards Toyota has set in the collision repair business are necessary to run an efficient, profitable collision repair business.
